She couldn't afford to be fired from this job. It was hard enough to find good jobs when certain types of managers looked down on her for her size. She was what the rest of society would call obese, what her doctor called someone with an, "unhealthy weight," and to top it off, her passion was clothing and design, so of course everyone she worked with was superficial and didn't hesitate to hurt her feelings.

Cindy Hewes arrived at work, tugging at her snugly fitting business dress. It was time for another day of the same old thing. She sighed, and laboriously trudged to her cubicle. It was the furthest workspace from the door, so she had to move past almost everyone on her floor before arriving at her desk. This wouldn't be a big deal for most people, but Cindy was a big girl who happened to be very well-endowed, and walking through narrow rows of chairs and people got pretty awkward sometimes.

Stephen Hart checked his watch. He didn't have to be home for another fifteen minutes, which was good because he wasn't done with his jog yet. He turned down the side street that was the closest to home and began his descent down the road. He loved exercising in the morning. These jogs were always so refreshing and calming. The peaceful world was just what he needed to start his day out right and make sure he had the boost he needed to get things done.

Sandra Ernest flipped through the pages in her book, curious to see what would happen next. The protagonist of this story was always coming up with innovative and creative solutions to the wild situations she got herself into, and this time she had been caught spying on the person she had a crush on and was going to have to come up with something to make herself seem like she was a lot more noble than she had appeared to be through her stalking.
